STORY OF THE LOST CHILD AND THE ROBBINS-HINDS TRAGEDY ON MAGALLOWAY

Where Diamond Stream courses down to meet the quiet waters of Magalloway under the shadow of Mt. Dustin, lies the old Robbins farm.

Here a youth and farm hand, Daniel Robbins by name, in 1820 brought a bride from Bethel, Maine, the daughter of one Stearns, by whom the husband had been employed.

Although little is known, Robbins was industrious and capable, and in early life gave no evidence of the heinous nature which culminated in a revolting crime.

Robbins and his wife lived, contented and happy for several years at his isolated Magalloway home, the nearest inhabitants being at Errol fifteen miles away. He hunted often, sable and beaver, cleared some land and erected a small two story house, barn and sheds.

In 1824 or 1825 he went to Farmington and Phillips to sell his furs. On his return passing through the settlement of Avon, he came across a girl and two year old boy in a path near the woods. The boy willing went with Robbins, and soon they came upon a family of Indians from a St. Francis tribe, on the shore of the lake. Robbins said he had found the boy in the woods and should cut him up for a sable bait. The Indians, engaged in fishing and seaboard trade, and became prosperous. These facts were told by the parents of Mrs. Robbins twenty years after her marriage.

In the meantime Robbins having hunted the Magalloway, pushed out beyond Richardson Lake and Kennebec River, to the shore to Kennebec Pond. Here he met two hunters named Hinds and Cloutman who had for years hunted those waters and had a camp.

Robbins induced them to go into co-partnership with him putting their trades and equipment into one stock. On their return after a successful hunting season, burned and no trace of Robbins.

Finding certain articles of iron gone they were satisfied Robbins had turned the camp and stolen the furs. Without food they finally, with much hardship got back to Rangely, then in a few days to get an officer and arrest Robbins. Gen. Lewis Loomis a powerful man and fearless, was commissioned to apprehend Robbins. He with Hinds repaired to Errol and started on the ice up the Magalloway about four miles where they met Robbins and returned without him. Errol. Robbins denied the crime, but a man from Farmington came in and identified him as a man who had sold $400 worth of fur there the week before. Robbins then owned up and settled paying Hinds and Cloutman $350 in money, one yoke of oxen, two cows, two 3 year old heifers and gave his note for $50 payable in one year.

After this Robbins made threats and said Hinds would lift up his eyes in hell for taking the last $200, the if he had done wrong Hinds ought to be deprived of his means of living. Hearing these threats Hinds and Cloutman were deterred from going after their traps for two years. Finally Hinds decided to risk the venture and taking with him his son a lad of 17 years started for the little Kennebec Pond.

At their old camp on the shore of little Kennebec Pond, Hinds and his son met Robbins, who seemed glad to see them. He said he was sorry for the wrong he had done and asked forgiveness, and said he meant to live a Godly life thereafter. Robbins said he had just come from the head of Chandiere river, where he had found two families of beaver, and if Hinds would take his traps, go with him and help him catch them he should have one-half, and the other half should be appropriated to pay the $50 note which was due. Robbins' seeming goodness induced Hinds to go, but he first went to Rangely to obtain provisions to last the journey. While there he was warned by Messrs. Rangeley, Toothaker, Hoar and Robbins' threats, but, being a resolute man, decided to risk the enterprise.

A few days after Robbins and Hinds and his son left for Chandiere. Robbins returned home, but nothing was heard of Hinds and son. After three weeks had passed, there was suspicion of foul play, and the news spread quickly to Errol, Colebrook and Milan, where Hinds lived. Investigation proved that Robbins, a few days before had sold on Dead River a rifle, powder horn and hunting axe which belonged to Hinds. Thereupon Hinds' neighbors and towns-men raised funds and sent one Ellingwood to Lancaster the shire town to get authority to arrest Robbins for murder.

A warrant was granted, and Gen. Loomis made special deputy for the emergency, with instructions to capture Robbins dead or alive. Loomis took Ellingwood as assistant, on the promise live or die. They made their trip to Errol in six hours over bad roads. They hired a skiff, borrowed a light gun, bought some pork and bread and proceeded up the Magalloway to Robbins' home.

They were met by Mrs. Robbins, who said, "You are after my husband again; he has gone. He left at eleven o'clock yesterday and I never expect to see him again." Loomis told her they were going up river to look for some pine lumber. In sight of Robbins' home they came across the famous Indian Metlak, who had just finished a birch canoe, which Loomis hired for the expedition, as he knew Metlak well when he lumbered on the river. Upon Metlak's inquiry, "how far you speak," Loomis replied, "eight or ten miles to look up some lumber." "Oh no, no pine trees, but Robbins, no good."

The searches were assured by other settlers that Mrs. Robbins' account of her husband's departure was correct and also that he carried a rifle and fowling piece loaded with buckshot and said, "If I am sent for again they will send that black Loomis and if you see him give my love to him and tell him if he arrests me again it will be his last; he has been my ruin."

Loomis and Ellingwood proceeded up river cautiously, the latter in the stern of the canoe with paddle, the former ready to shoot at a moment's notice. After camping two nights they came at 11 a. m. to the last falls, and the carrying place of about two miles, from the waters of the Magalloway to those of the Chandiere river in Canada. They hauled up their birch and found Robbins had got all his loading over except one pack which he would probably be back after soon.

The Indians had long before cut a narrow path through the thick growth to pass by the falls, with their canoes and packs. Loomis stationed himself close to this path hidden from view behind a thick growth of pine. Ellingwood was a few rods back, ready to come at signal. In half an hour Loomis heard the footsteps of Robbins coming and also a drumming in his own bosom. When Robbins got directly opposite, Loomis leaped upon him with all the muscular power he possessed and threw him lengthwise if the path with his whole weight upon him and called Ellingwood, who came in a few seconds. Robbins struggled, but he was soon disarmed and securely bound.

They then proceeded homeward in the canoe with the prisoner, and when forced to stop day or night, either Loomis or Ellingwood stood guard. They stopped at Robbins' home at his request. Here they met Ezekiah Parsons, a Deputy Sheriff, who accompanied them. They chartered the birch canoe, of old Metlak to go to Errol, 15 miles, where they left their horses.

Robbins was sent to Lancaster jail to await his trial, in about two months. The night before the sitting of the court he broke jail and was never heard from for sixteen years, when he was hanged in upper Canada, fifty miles from Kingston for killing a Frenchman.

It is said he made a confession of his crimes to a Catholic priest, and said he shot Hinds through the head and killed his son with an axe. The Loret Indians found two men the next spring killed in the manner stated by Robbins.

This account of the Robbins-Hinds tragedy was told by Gen. Loomis to a reporter who printed it, and must be considered the true version. The story "Gaut, Gurley, or the Trappers of Umbagog," by D. P. Thompson, founded on the above affair, while correct in many details of places and events yet like most historic novels draws largely on the imagination.—Colebrook News.

$1,635,000 Hidden In This Year's Goodyear Tires

Here are amazing facts: Goodyear Fortified Tires contain five costly features found in no other tire. They have other features not common.

If we omitted those features, this year's probable output would cost us $1,635,000 less. We could add that much to our profits. And you would never know it until troubles came.

This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 yearly. Most of this goes into extra rubber—all into extra wear. And we shall spend $100,000 this year to find other betterments still.

Users Save $5,000,000

Yet our 1915 price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about $5,000,000 this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

These extra features—used by us alone—will save users millions more.

That's why Goodyears dominate. They have long outsold any other. They are gaining new users faster than we can supply them. We hope, for your own sake, that they'll soon win you. Any dealer will supply you. (2419)

When You Want a Thing Done RIGHT, Do It YOURSELF

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

New Hotel on Mt. Washington

With good weather on the summit of Mount Washington work on the new hotel is being pushed to the limit and it is now expected that it will be completed by the first of August, the time originally set.

The work is being done under the direction of Superintendent Cummings of the White Mountain division and at his office in Woodsville it was stated that the structure has been boarded in and the roof shingled and completed.

The men employed can now work all the time as they can be employed in fine weather when inclement weather makes it impossible to continue operations on the outside of the structure.

The Mountain Washington Railway has opened for passenger traffic and it is expected that more people will be carried to the summit this season than in any year since the road has been in operation.

Arrested at Rumford

After eluding the cleverest sleuths of Connecticut for more than two years Frank Krawl was arrested in Rumford, June 24th, and taken to Portland by Detective Lawler of the New Haven, Conn., Police.

According to Detective Lawler, Krawl with three others perpetrated 32 burglaries in New Haven before a capture was finally effected. Three of the quartet were arrested, tried and convicted but Krawl made his escape and has since been pursued all over the country. The police secured work and was apparently confident that he had thrown his pursuers off the track. His surprise was complete when the New Haven officer turned up and placed him under arrest. He concluded, however, to return with the officers without the formality of requisition papers.

The Traders "Guideboard"

"In my opinion the advertisements are far from being the least valuable part of the paper. I look them over carefully and save at least five times the cost of the paper through the business advantage I get from them."

The above remark is credited by a newspaper exchange to a citizen of its home town and it applies equally well in Norway.

The merchants are the purchasing agents for the people of the town. They make their report in the columns of this newspaper as to what they have been able to do for their clients. Every week there are notices of special values which for some good reason or other can be had in the store of this or that merchant.

They are special exigencies in the daily history of every store which the newspaper advertisement tells about. A merchant finds a special opportunity to buy a large lot of valuable goods at a low price. No other store has them. To make a profit on the transaction, however, he must turn the lot over at once. He cannot wait for the goods to be picked up by customers.

He must let the whole town know about it in a systematic way or the goods will move too slowly and the deal will prove a failure. The newspaper advertisement furnishes the only means by which he can solicit the whole town.

Similarly some merchant is constantly finding that he is overstocked on certain lines and must turn his goods quickly to avert a heavier loss. The newspaper gives the news of it.

Changes like these are coming up all the time. The people who do not follow them through the newspaper are adding to their cost of living. The time to buy is when someone wants to sell. And if a man has anything that he must sell promptly and at a price advantageous to the customer he will not keep still about it nor wait for the public to happen into his store by chance.

Merrill-Davis

At high noon, Wednesday occurred the marriage of Lulu Elizabeth Davis and Dr. Chester Mabry Merrill both of South Paris. The ceremony was performed on the lawn at the residence of T. M. Davis, on Highland Ave., under an arch of evergreen and roses, in the presence of the immediate families and a few intimate friends. The officiating clergyman was Rev. C. L. Spear.

To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Mrs. George I. Burnham, the bridal party proceeded from the house. The bride was beautifully gowned in a dress of white silk and wore a wedding veil caught with rose buds and carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The bride was given away by her father T. M. Davis and was attended by Greta Merrill as flower girl, and Henry Merrill, Jr. as ring bearer, a niece and a nephew of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held. The house was prettily decorated with roses. A delicious lunch was served by Marie Newton, Beatrice Andrews of West Paris and Myra Haggott. Soon after the reception the bride and groom left in their auto for Patten where they will spend a few weeks at the Merrill camp. The bride's traveling suit was of white serge with hat to match.

Mrs. Merrill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Davis and has resided in South Paris for eleven years. She is a graduate of Paris high school, class of 1914. Since graduating she has taught school. She is a member of Deering Memorial Methodist church and for several years has been a member of the Cecelia vestal choir.

Dr. Merrill, the bridegroom, is the son of Lyman S. Merrill. He is a graduate of Paris high school, class of 1906, also a graduate of the United States college of Veterinary Surgery at Washington, D. C., class of 1913. He attended the University of Maine at Orono in 1907 and 1908. He is a member of the Washington Veterinary Medical Association and has recently started a veterinary hospital in South Paris where he has successfully practiced.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrill received the usual line of wedding gifts. They will be at home to their friends August 1st at 30 Oxford street, where they will go to house-keeping.

FREE YOURSELF FROM WORRY

My narrowest escape from death was not from any material thing, but from the national menace—worry.

I worried about the weather, my own affairs, the affairs of others, the future, looking that my husband was only too glad to get out of my sight, and then I worried because he did not love me. Now I know that no man in his right mind can either love or respect a chronic worrier, no matter how royal he is, or how hard he tries.

I worried about my children when they were in the best of health, for fear they might die; and I would sit and rock them, crying softly, while I planned their funerals and where I should have them buried. In my dismal fancy I suffered ten thousand tortures that I might or might not be called upon to meet, and I am writing this in the hope that some dear sister may see whether she is bound and pull up before it is too late.

I worried because the neighbors did not come to see me, and I know now that it was because I always had a tale of woe to tell when they did come.

I worried myself sick, and then worried because I was sick, imagining all sorts of ailments, and thinking I was dying.

My good old family doctor diagnosed the case as neuritis, a nervous disease, but after several months' treatment concluded that a little surgical work on the mind would be more effective than medicine.

No man can work over his head, and in a hundred other directions she is an individual. Such a complex individuality does not easily find its complement.

Every self-supporting girl must also be deeply impressed with the difference between her own economic position and that of her mother.

Now the girl has her own pay envelope, and in possessing it absolutely she holds the key to life as she desires it. It is not to be wondered at that a young woman in full possession of youth and health finds it difficult to give up a salary which, even if small, is absolutely her own, to accept a feudal relation to some man's salary, often not much larger than the one she has earned, knowing it must suffice for two and probably for more.

Another difficulty that confronts the young woman of today in her search for the altar is her superior intelligence.

This is especially true of the young woman who has risen intellectually and economically above her social class. The social emancipation of woman lags far behind her intellectual and economic freedom, so that these young women whom we are considering still move socially in their family places. The men in that group are too ignorant and too poor to suit her; and men with whom she works know her only as a stenographer, a teacher or a journalist.

Even public meeting places are apt to be restricted to one sex. If the girl joins a club, it is a girl's club; if she joins the Y. W. C. A., the young men are a half a mile away in the Y. M. C. A. When shall we be wise enough to turn both institutions into a Young People's Association? And meantime, while the hunting field is narrow the difficulty of selection has increased.

WOMEN WHO DO NOT MARRY AND WHY.

There were in the United States in 1910 8,924,056 women over fifteen years of age who were neither married, widowed nor divorced. These single women represent 27.7 per cent. of all the women over fifteen years of age in the United States at the time.

Of native-born white women between the ages of twenty-five and thirty-four, 30.6 per cent. are unmarried, while of the same class between the ages of thirty-four and forty-four, 17.3 per cent. are still single.

The public-school teachers of America alone number nearly 400,000 mature women, hardly any of whom are married. It would be foolish to imagine that the great majority of single women in America could not marry if they wanted to do so. Man proposes, but woman disposes when he shall do it. Why do so many women elect to walk through life alone?

Doubtless the growth in democratic ideals, which has been steadily working among women since 1870, has had much to do with it. Women have ceased to be merely "the sex," they have become individuals.

No woman seeks fulfillment not only for her personal liking, but for all the qualities of her varied personal life. She has not only racial, religious and social interests, but she has an intelligent attitude toward the whole of life; she has musical, dramatic or literary tastes; she is interested in social justice or in the vested interests of caste; she cares for travel or she desires a quiet home; and in a hundred other directions she is an individual. Such a complex individuality does not easily find its complement.

Every self-supporting girl must also be deeply impressed with the difference between her own economic position and that of her mother.

Now the girl has her own pay envelope, and in possessing it absolutely she holds the key to life as she desires it. It is not to be wondered at that a young woman in full possession of youth and health finds it difficult to give up a salary which, even if small, is absolutely her own, to accept a feudal relation to some man's salary, often not much larger than the one she has earned, knowing it must suffice for two and probably for more.

Good Water for Farm Homes

Clear, sparkling water is not always pure water. A refreshing draught from "the old oaken bucket" may be a beginning of a long and possibly fatal illness from typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera or other disease.

The subject of pure water supplies for drinking and cooking purposes is discussed in a bulletin just issued by the United States Public Health Service.

The germs of the so-called waterborne diseases come from the bodies of persons afflicted with these diseases. They are not long outside the body and do not originate spontaneously in nature. A few diseases are communicated from animals to man, but for the most part the germs which get into drinking water and produce disease come only from human beings and animals away from our water supplies, we keep the water free from disease germs.

The usual sources of farm water supplies are wells, springs and cisterns. Running streams are seldom free from dangerous pollution that without filtration they cannot often be considered safe for domestic use.

Novel Scheme for Betterment of Main Street

Ralph Butts is the mover of the plan and has visited many of the citizens and has obtained pledges for work and money. No one denies the need of a better street, but there are a few who object to the scheme.

Mr. Butts has this to say:—A movement has been set on foot to fix the Main street of Norway Village by every man in town giving a day's work or the equivalent thereof in money. This idea has been worked out in other towns and has proved to be a success. If others can, why can't we?

The proposition as it now stands is, to start at the head of Main street. That is, where Pleasant and Main street intersect and build as far as the means permit, by a canvas of the town will permit, making the section a permanent piece of road.

In other towns the ladies have turned out and given a dinner to the men at work on the road on this day, and made it a sort of gala day for everybody. The idea is to take a section of the road each year, until the street is completed.

An Approaching Wedding

Professor Addison Emery Verrill of Yale University, announces the approaching marriage of his daughter, Edith Barton Verrill, to Vivian Milner Akers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Akers, of Norway, on the evening of Wednesday the seventh of July, at half after seven o'clock.

The wedding, which is to be a small and quiet one for the relatives and a few intimate friends, will take place at the home of the bride's uncle, Clarence M. Smith's, of Norway, and in the same room where the bride's parents were married 50 years ago.

Miss Verrill will have as her maid of honor the groom's sister, Ruth C. Akers, while Mr. Akers has chosen Hugh Pen-dexter, Jr., of Norway as his best man. The Episcopal service will be read by the Rev. C. G. Miller of the Universalist church. Prof. Verrill and Miss Verrill expect to arrive in Norway from New Haven about July third.

Boosting The Home Town

In many parts of the country a great deal is being said concerning the "boosting of the home town," and it is this idea of boosting the town, why is it not equally as good for towns in Oxford County, Maine?

We note these booster's make special efforts in setting before the public advantages of living in and dealing with their town. In boosting a town the people must work together and improve the conditions of the place, the town must be made as attractive as is consistent with its means and must show signs of an active interest in the well-being of all.

Our own town of Norway which is located near as pretty a sheet of water as one will find, is an attractive place, as is proven each year by the number of summer visitors who come here year after year, people from miles away who come to spend their vacation. The sojourn of the summer visitor is beneficial to its merchants and to the community.

The people who live here the year round are the ones to do the boosting by doing all that can be done in raising the town on to a higher level, by helping in its improvements and by trading at home and keeping the money in circulation in the home town, instead of sending it off to benefit some other dealer in some distant town.

During the past year many new improvements along this line have been made. The sidewalks have been replaced by concrete sidewalks and wooden walks and more will be added from year to year.

The houses are well painted, many improvements along this line have been made. The sidewalks have been replaced by concrete sidewalks and wooden walks and more will be added from year to year.

Another attraction to Norway are its business places where everything in the various lines of trade is kept and for proof just turn to the advertising columns of this paper.

The chamber of commerce of Lawrence, Mass., has succeeded in inducing the Victor Typewriter Co. of New York to build their new plant in Lawrence. This building will be of composite concrete and terra-cotta, 750 feet long, 100 feet wide and four stories high, costing about $1,200,000 and employing over 1500 skilled hands.

This shows what a good organization can do for its town when they have for their slogan "Where there's a will, there's a way." This Chamber of Commerce went after this industry and they got it.

Now let the people of Norway put their minds on what an industry like this would do for Norway and the people. Think of the new houses it will cause to be built, how it will help the farmers, the traders, the manufacturers, all kinds of labor and business. Think this over. Let us all be booster's for Norway.

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as if I had tried my mother-in-law remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

I Am the Printing Press

I am the printing press, born of the mother earth. My heart is of steel, my limbs are of iron, and my fingers are of brass.

I sing the songs of the world, the oratorios of history, the symphonies of all time.

I am the voice of today, the herald of tomorrow. I weave into the warp of the past the stories of peace and war alike.

I make the human heart beat with passion and tenderness. I stir the pulse of nations and make brave men do braver deeds and soldiers die.

I inspire the midnight toiler, weary at his loom, to lift his head again and gaze, with fearlessness, into the vast beyond, seeking the consolation of a hope eternal.

When I speak, a myriad people listen to my voice. The Saxon, the Latin, the Celt, the Hun, the Slave, the Hindu, all comprehend me.

I am the tireless clarion of the news. I cry your joys and sorrows every hour. I fill the dullard's mind with thoughts uplifting. I am light, knowledge, power. I epitomize the conquest of mind over matter.

I am the record of all things mankind has achieved. My offspring comes to you in the candle's glow, amid the dim lamps of poverty, the splendor of riches; at sunrise, at high noon, and in the waning evening.

I am the laughter and tears of the world, and I shall never die until all things return to the immutable dust.

Why Germany Has Food

Germany's system of food production is a very different thing from America's lack of system of food production. Germany's whole system of wealth production is on a different basis from America's wealth production.

Those who predicted the German Empire's quick starvation marvel at the stores of food she possesses. It is a marvel; but the marvel is a part of the German thorough organization of its resources.

It is a common thing throughout the world to say or assume that with our production come problems of distribution. But only a few countries, notably Germany and Belgium (before the war), have solved their production problems. It is true that potentially, through the vast areas of soil opened to settlement, through invention, chemical discoveries, transportation, development, etc., we could produce wealth beyond the dreams of avarice. But we don't. Germany comes closer to it than most countries because Germany has recognized the fundamental interest of every one in her natural resources.

Approves New Purchase

The purchase by the federal government of 97,888 acres of non-agricultural land in the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Southern Appalachians has been approved by the National Forest Reservation Commission, bringing the total area so far approved for national forests in the East up to more than 1,275,000 acres. This latest acquisition will involve an expenditure of $380,000, or about $3.88 an acre.

The largest parcel is in the Boone purchase area in North Carolina, a block of 36,368 acres, which the owners have agreed to sell for $1.90 per acre; the next largest is in New Hampshire, a group of tracts comprising 23,518 acres, one of which will close a gap between the tracts already acquired in that region, the price being $7.21 per acre.

Practically all the land is mountainous, non-agricultural, and valuable only for forests. Much of it has been culled or cut-over, but several large tracts are comparatively heavily timbered.

Keep Busy

The importance of steady and useful employment, especially by the young, can hardly be overestimated. The unemployed are generally the most unhappy, the most discontented, the most liable to do wrong. The person who is busy will have less time or inclination to find fault with others or to engage in disputable affairs. Keep employed. Do something useful. Work for small wages rather than be idle. Such a person will not long be unemployed; his work will be long without fair compensation. There is always a demand for faithful employees.—Bryantville News.

Grange Memorial
The Grange had a good time at their all day meeting, Saturday. The business session was held in the forenoon. A good fish chowder dinner was enjoyed. About 50 were present. The afternoon program was open and was a memorial service. No memorial service was held last year, so the deceased members who were specially remembered covered more than the year just passed. The program which was excellent was as follows:
Anthem, Wake the Morn Breaks Sweetly Over Then
Quartet, H. E. Shelley
Scripture, The Beatitudes, Rev. D. A. Ball
Solo, O Rest in the Lord, from the Oratorio "Elijah" by Mendelssohn, J. W. Henderson
Prize, Come Unto Me, J. V. Henderson
Response, Come Unto Me, J. V. Henderson
Quartet, Ella Wheeler Wilcox
Poem, Beyond, Ella Wheeler Wilcox
Memorial, nine members—Mrs. Augusta Beck, by Mrs. F. L. Wyman; Mrs. Blanche Stearns, by S. S. Dudley; B. E. Field, H. Dunham, D. Small, C. E. Chase, J. C. Howe, W. W. Dunham, C. C. Curtis, were all given by the Secretary F. L. Wyman.
Rev. D. A. Ball
Address
Now the Day is Over, J. Baraboy
Benediction, Rev. D. A. Ball
The memorials were given in a brief sketch of the life and membership of each. Mr. Wyman giving all seven of the brothers in turn. Mr. Ball's address was based on Loyalty, First to Ourself, try Our Flag, Our Relation with Others, the Grange and of the Loyalty of the Deceased Members, were all very fittingly brought in. The quartette choir consisted of Miss Berry, Mrs. White and Messrs. Churchill and Grover. Mrs. D. A. Grover accompanied all the music.
The Fines had a picnic or as we would call it, a grove meeting last Sunday in the grove near Herman Lumatta, on Curtis Hill. Rev. A. Raita gave forenoon and afternoon preaching services. They had a picnic lunch at noon and ice cream.
S. W. Dunham has returned home after a several weeks visit with his daughter, Mrs. Hamilton of Greenfield, Mass., and his sons, George in Brattleboro, Vt., and Linden in Bel low Falls, Vt. Mr. Dunham has improved in health since he has been away.
Miss Crabtree of Portland recently visited at Dr. F. E. Wheeler's.
Mrs. D. A. Ball has been enjoying a visit of a few days from her aunt, Mrs. Warren of North Paris.
Mrs. Roscoe Tuell is visiting her daughter, Mrs. I. L. Bowker. Mrs. J. H. Dunham is keeping house for Mr. Tuell in her absence.
Lillian Wheeler has gone to Gorham, N. H., to her aunt's.
Mrs. Tuell expects to work somewhere there during the summer.
Mrs. W. W. Dunham entertained a dinner party to some of her elderly friends last week, Wednesday. The weather was fine so they served their dinner on the lawn under the pines. It was a very happy occasion. Those present were: Mrs. Eliza Lawrence of Lawrence, Mass., Mrs. Elizabeth Day of Lewiston, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Tuell, Mrs. Anna Young, Mrs. Martha Dunham, Mrs. Clara Ridlon, Mrs. Mary A. Lang, Mrs. Levi Shedd was there in the afternoon. The company named themselves the "White heads" thinking that it applied to them because they all had gray hair. Before they separated they had a group picture taken.
About 20 from this grange attended Pomona at North Buckfield Tuesday and Wednesday. It was a beautiful day and the autos and teams brought members from the several granges from far and near until there were 350 more or less in attendance. The program was also very enjoyable.

Monday, July 5th, flags should be displayed in honor of Independence Day.

Moon Signs

The moon plays an important part in sign telling. I know several old ladies who regulate all their household affairs, and even the conduct of life, by this luminary. All kinds of weather hangs upon the changes of the moon. As a matter of fact, you and I rather like to see the new moon over the right shoulder.

To be sure, we have no faith in the baneful influence of this sign. Still it is just as well to be cautious about offending her ladyship.

Farmers study the shape of the new moon to determine the month is to be wet or dry. The Indians used to say that if you could hang a powder horn upon the curve of the new moon, the month would be generally pleasant.

A circle about the moon means a storm approaching. The number of stars within the circle tell the number of days which will elapse before the storm begins. Farmers tell about planting corn in the old of the moon.

Sweet Pickled Strawberries
Prepare two quarts of berries as for canning. Add two cups of sugar and slowly heat the mixture to the boiling point. Add half a pint of vinegar and continue the boiling 10 minutes. Then keep the berries over a slow fire, but below the boiling point, for an hour. Place the berries in jars and boil syrup until it thickens. Put new rubbers in place, fill the jars to overflowing with the boiling syrup and seal them at once.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.
Names for Discussion at Board of Trade. An important Board of Trade meeting will be held at the Municipal Court Rooms, Wednesday evening, July 14, at eight o'clock.

Would not the "making of the Main Street in Norway Village" be a good thing to discuss at the Board of Trade meeting?
Ralph Butts is still working on getting work for the improvement of Main street, Norway. He plans to start street grading at the head of Main street and lead toward the corner of Main and ris street, where connection will be made with the Trunk road.

One of the latest ways and one that is considered a great improvement on any method is a cement street, similar to our sidewalks, only stronger. This would be a good thing to look up.

Don C. Seitz will explain the advantages of cement street to the Norway in street builders, should the ones have it in charge wish to have the Norway Board of Health should that the buildings along Main street connected with the public sewer, be Main street is built for a permanent street.
